BIO-IDENTICAL HORMONE PELLETT
REPLACEMENT THERAPY

the biostation™

replenish life. restore beauty. defy age.

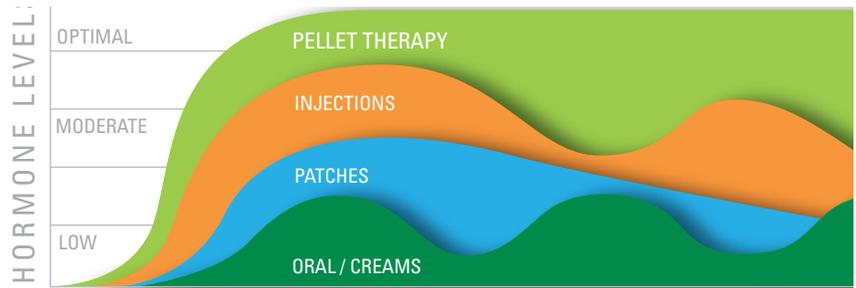

What is bio-identical hormone pellet therapy?

Hormone Pellet Therapy places small, time released pellets of bio-identical hormones in the fat under your skin to be absorbed.

The hormones in the pellets are bio-identical, meaning they are the exact molecular match of the human hormone. The process is quick, like having your blood drawn. A small amount of local anesthesia is used to numb the skin before a small tube pushes the pellet into place, and is easily performed in the office.

The pellets are about the size of a grain of rice and are derived from all-natural plant sources and dissolve completely over a 3-6 month period in order to replicate the body's optimal hormonal levels. A compounding pharmacy, following strict federal guidelines, compresses, heats and sterilizes testosterone powder to make the pellets. Once placed in the fatty tissue underneath the skin, the rice sized pellets most closely mimic the actions of healthy ovaries and testicles with regards to testosterone release into the bloodstream.

Symptoms that may benefit from bio-identical pellet therapy include:

- Anxiety
- Irritability
- Loss of energy
- Poor focus
- Decreased sexual desire
- Higher bad cholesterol
- Weight gain despite exercise
- Loss of memory
- Cardiac dysfunction
- Depression
- Poor concentration
- Loss of muscle tone
- Menopausal symptoms
- Inflammation issues

Why hormone pellet therapy is a good choice for women

For women, hormone replacement therapy can counteract the upsetting signs of menopause and aging such as weight gain, moodiness, fatigue, depression, and hot flashes, among others. Our specialists will get your body back in balance by restoring the optimal hormonal environment within you to experience health, wellness, general feeling of well-being, and the best metabolic condition for weight management.

Restoring your ideal hormone balance can relieve many of the symptoms of aging and help you feel younger, healthier, and better than ever.

Hormone pellets are created from all-natural plant ingredients. They're about the size of a grain of rice. Each pellet contains pure, pharmaceutical-grade testosterone or estradiol—which is a female estrogen hormone, without added ingredients. These hormones are bio-identical, which means that they function in your body exactly the same as the hormones that are naturally produced by your body.

The pellets are typically inserted in the hips or buttocks and provide a gradual release of the hormones, which not only controls the level of hormone as it is released, but also allows patients to go up to six months between treatments.

Benefits of hormone pellet therapy

- Pellets are made from all-natural plant ingredients
- Hormones are automatically released into the body, so there are no missed doses
- The safest form of hormone replacement therapy
- You never have to work with messy creams
- Pellets have not been linked to cancer or any other health concern
- The procedure is virtually pain free

Why hormone pellet therapy is a good choice for men

For men, hormone replacement therapy can restore the energy, stamina, and lean muscle mass that declines with age. Our multi-tiered approach will synchronize your system by restoring the proper levels of testosterone while controlling the estrogen and multiple other hormones that fluctuate in its absence and cause health issues. Your body will regain the ideal hormone balance to help you build lean muscle, lose weight, gain energy, boost libido, improve your health, and feel more youthful.

Once the pellets start releasing testosterone into a man's bloodstream, he should start feeling more energetic and focused. He may find it easier to lose weight and build muscle, and controlling his emotions should get easier. He may notice that his interest in relationships have increased, especially intimacy with his partner.
